Joining a state trucking association is a good choice whether you own a fleet or are a driver. In addition to a unified presence representing the best interests of the industry, there are a number of other benefits that members can enjoy. The following list is an example list; actual benefits will vary depending on the truck association. A visit to the respective association can provide further insight into their specific benefits.

- Safety compliance services and training.
- Quick access to endorsed programs and organizations.
- Safety supplies and services to help reduce costs.
- Employee background, alcohol, and drug screening services.
- Advocacy to legislative and regulatory bodies.
- Expanded industry education to keep members legal.
- Access to truck and fleet-oriented insurance.
- Opportunities to network with other industry-related professionals.
- Information on industry-friendly political candidates. Different state trucking associations will be able to provide a variety of benefits for membership. Joining a trucking association helps to ensure that the interests of the industry are protected and advanced. Without those voices, regulators and government officials with only cursory knowledge of the trucking industry would be the ones solely deciding policy. Your membership and voice can contribute to the whole to ensure the industry is not unnecessarily pigeon-holed.

The final major benefit for drivers and fleet owners alike is the ability to stay safe and up to date with regulations in an easy fashion. The changes that do come down from committees are often addressed by the various state trucking associations to get their members onboard and compliant. That can save a whole lot of headache and hassle for the driver or fleet owner who is not interested in paying continuous attention to new legislation.
